Business tourist visa

American citizens are in luck! The U.S. passport is ranked as the 11th most powerful in the world, giving visa-free access to 186 countries as of 2018.Of course, it has dropped a bit in the last two years — but it's still one of the best passports you can have. Regardless of whether a country has visa-free access, there are still requirements that need to be met if you are going to travel abroad. We recommend that you check with the relevant embassy before making travel plans. Although each country has different requirements, here are some general rules:Your passport must be valid for at least 6 months after the desired departure date from the country to your destination. Don't leave it too late to renew your passport. Consider a new passport when you have accumulated a lot of stamps. Although most countries require only one blank page, many require 2 blank pages (and some still need 3). You may be asked for proof of travel onwards, which is not a problem if you have a return ticket. If you plan to jump in the country, you will need to have proof of your travel plans. You may be refused to board to your planned destination if you cannot satisfy the immigration you plan to leave their country. If you are not sure when planning to leave, you can purchase a flight on that is refundable and rebook later. Some countries require you to have adequate medical insurance to cover your stay. Regardless of whether it is mandatory, we recommend that you purchase travel insurance. Check out our travel insurance guide to find the best one for you. It is rare, but you may be asked for proof of funds and will need to satisfy immigration that you can support your travels. This can catch you off guard, and trying to get into your internet bank at The Wi-Fi Airport can be a bit frantic. To be prepared, make sure you have a copy of a bank statement or a screenshot on your phone. Below we list the specific visa requirements for over 100 of the most popular countries. Please note that these details relate only to tourist trips. In addition to these requirements, you must also be in possession of a valid full passport (instead of an emergency passport or U.S. passport card). Unless otherwise stated, tourist visa prices and departure taxes are in USD. Before we begin, be sure to also check for vaccines you may need before you leave as there are many countries that require one.
